The Mississippi Gulf Coast Council of Garden Clubs is presenting its 31st Annual Spring Pilgrimage, March 29 through April 9.

The Bay-Waveland Pilgrimage will open the event, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday, March 29.

Diamondhead will be the attraction from 10 a.m. to 3:30 p.m., Friday, March 31; Saturday, April 1, will find the pilgrims visiting Gulf Hills; 1 p.m. to 4 p.m., Sunday, April 2, the tour will visit Long Beach, and from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., Tuesday, April 4, Pass Christian will be featured.

The Spring Pilgrimage will also visit: 1:30-4:30 p.m., Biloxi; Sunday, April 9, Gautier, Moss Point, and Pascagoula.

The Bay-Waveland Pilgrimage will open at the Garden Center on Leonhard Ave., where coffee and doughnuts will be served along with information and maps concerning the rest of the tour.

A second stop will be at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Earl DeMarçay, 504 Sunset Drive, Bay St. Louis.

This contemporary home was designed and built by the owner. It has a facade of cedar and brick, with large spans of glass. Informal living is apparent upon entering the wood-plank foyer leading to the spacious living room. The living area features massive stained beams and has an open loft overlooking the room.

The next stop is at St. Augustine's Seminary on Ruella Street.

Owned by a religious family of over 5,000 priests and brothers, working in 35 countries of the world, the Divine Word Missionaries, the community was begun by Father Arnold Janssen, in Steyl, Holland, in 1875. Originally founded in Greenville, St. Augustine's moved to Bay St. Louis in 1923.

The last stop before lunch is at 'Lonley Oak' - the residence of Dr. and Mrs. Lawrence J. LeBon, Jr., 1000 North Beach Rd.

One of the oldest homes in Bay St. Louis, the old fashioned cottage was restored by its owners following Hurricane Camille.

Highlights include a display of antiques collected by Dr. LeBon, and among the pines and gardens is a greenhouse featuring an exotic bromeliad collection.

Luncheon on the tour will be served at the Bay-Waveland Yacht Club but reservations are required.

Following lunch, pilgrims will visit 'Swoop Manor' at 414 South Beach Blvd., Bay St. Louis.

Another of the oldest homes in Bay St. Louis, 'Swoop Manor' is built on spacious grounds that were a Spanish Land Grant in 1781. The house is an example of early Greek Revival and was built around 1853.

HNC Elem. PTO not Murphy makes cool air offering

Hancock North Central Elementary School Principal James O'Hara, said yesterday that the money collected by the Parent Teacher Organization of his school towards air conditioning costs had been gathered over the last two or three years.

The statement followed an erroneous report made Thursday stating the PTO funds originated with the Charles B. Murphy and North Bay groups, for two air conditioning projects, one county and one city. Both were taken under advisement by the respective school boards.

While the North Bay report was correct, all references to the Murphy School should have read Hancock North Central Elementary School, and its

DuDe RR wetlands impact study inadequate, illegal, Corps told

by EDGAR PEREZ

Save The Bay demanded a new environmental impact statement and DuPont presented revised construction plans and figures to show rail is the only feasible method of shipment to and from its DeLisle plant.

Representatives of the environmentalist group and the huge chemical plant under construction on the north shores of Bay St. Louis squared off once again Thursday night at a public hearing in Gulfport.

The hearing was called by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers which is considering navigable waterways construction permit applications from DuPont.

DuPont, through its subsidiary Southern Mississippi Transportation Company, is seeking the permits to build trestles along the 13.5-mile route of the DuDe Railroad track between the plant and Illinois Central's mainline north of Gulfport.

CROCKETT LINDSEY

Crockett Lindsey announces for chancery judge

Crockett Lindsey of Gulfport has announced his candidacy for Chancery Court Judge in election scheduled for June 1, to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Judge Frank W. Alexander.

Lindsey is the son of Mrs. Loretta Fillingame Lindsey of Gulfport, and the late English Lindsey of Pass Christian, a former attorney practicing in Hancock, Harrison, and Stone Counties.

Admitted to practice in all state courts on Aug. 17, 1970, he earned a Juris Doctorate from the University of Mississippi School of Law, was a Class of '68 graduate of University of Mississippi (BA), and a graduate of Gulfport High School.

Appointed Municipal Court Judge for the City of Gulfport in July, 1975, he has practiced law in all State courts, the United States District Court for the Southern District of Mississippi and the United States Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals.

The candidate is vice president of the Mississippi Municipal Judges Conference, and is a member of the National Conference of Special Court Judges.

He has served in Chancery Court as a Special Master to hear uncontested divorces and as a Special Master in lunacy proceedings, as well as having advocated for his clients in virtually every type of Chancery matter brought before that court.

Married to the former Sue Hughes of Gulfport, the couple have two children, Wade, 10, and Courtney, age 22 months.

Mr. and Mrs. Allyn D. Combs wed in Church of the Pines

Miss Lauren Kay Brignac, daughter of Mrs. Patricia C. Saucier of Bay St. Louis, and the late Roy L. Brignac, and Allyn David Combs, son of Mrs. Hazel E. Combs, also of Bay St. Louis, and the late Foster H. Combs, were married Saturday, March 11, at Lutheran Church of the Pines, Waveland, Miss.

Rev. Jay R. Decker, pastor, performed the double ring ceremony before an altar decorated with arrangements of gladioli, carnations, daisies, fern, and candles.

Mrs. Tricia Deffes of Pass Christian, organist, and Jay Heitzmann, Bay St. Louis, soloist, presented a program of nuptial music.

Given in marriage by her brother, Danny R. Brignac, the bride wore a gown of English-net, and silk organza with Alencon lace over peau de soie, fashioned with an empire bodice. The A-line skirt, bordered with a band of matching lace and organza flounce, flowed into a train. Her full length veil of illusion, edged with lace, drifted from a lace caplet and she carried a bouquet of white roses interspersed with blue baby's breath and long white satin ribbon streamers.

Rose Ann Hudson attended the bride as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Karen Piazza and Robin Corr, cousin of the bride, all of Bay St. Louis.

They wore light blue floor length jersey knit dresses and head bands of miniature white carnations, net and baby's breath; their bouquets were daisies, white carnations and blue baby's breath.

Larry Combs, Nashville, Tenn., attended his brother as best man. Groomsmen were Frank Shattuck, Waveland, and Steve Combs, Bay St. Louis, brother of the groom.

Mrs. Saucier received guests wearing a pale blue dress with white accessories, and the mother of the groom chose a green dress with black accessories. Orchid corsages completed their ensembles.

A reception was held in Lutheran Church of the Pines Membership Hall. The bride's table, overlaid with a white lace cloth over blue, held a three-tiered wedding cake encircled by blue carnations.

Assisting at the reception were the bride's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Mike Brignac, Marrero, La.,

Mrs. Larry Combs, Nashville, Tenn., Mrs. Clare Bourgeois, aunt of the bride, Mrs. Frank Shattuck, Karla Tartavouille and Maria Langbein.

For her wedding trip to Memphis, Tenn., the bride wore a blue crepe empire style dress fashioned with V-neckline and flared sleeves of white lace and an orchid corsage.

The couple will reside in Bay St. Louis.

Out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Larry Combs, Miss Roslyn Corr, Mrs. Edia Brignac, Mrs. Nola Le Baue, Mrs. Audrey Tardo, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Brignac and Jennifer, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Chenier and children, Jules Galle, Marilyn Galle, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Brignac and children, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Burke, and Mr. and Mrs. Mike Walker.

Opinion/Ellis Cuevas

He's gotta be kidding

The Certified Public Accountant (CPA) from Pascagoula, who allegedly testified in Federal Court to the effect that Bay St. Louis had $495,000 in surplus funds that could be used to satisfy the $375,000 plus interest judgement garnered against the city by the heirs of James Warner, III, must be kidding. He claims the audit report for Bay St. Louis, dated Sept. 30, 1977, shows this surplus.

One of the big things this CPA fails to mention, is that Bay St. Louis had to operate another three months from the report date before the city would start collecting more revenues, taxes being due at the first of the year. The police, fire, utilities, maintenance and sanitation departments, City Hall personnel and so forth, all had to be paid plus the day to day operation of the city had to continue all without any revenues (or very few) coming in for three months.

If you as a family have $500 due next month, as salary, and someone took it, in all probability you would be in trouble financially because the majority of that money would already be allocated for food, rent, utilities notes, and the like, and as far as we can determine, the funds the CPA mentioned were already similarly allocated by the city.

We would like very much to see this accountant try and use the $171,000 he mentions in revenue sharing funds, for something other than the agreed use by Uncle Sam.

There are many important things Bay council has wanted to do and get started doing at recent meetings but couldn't because of a lack of proper funds.

Council right now is trying to acquire emergency funds for repairing the many sewer breaks throughout the city. In case the CPA isn't familiar with these problems, we suggest he ride over (or at least attempt to) the streets of Bay St. Louis.

Every street in the city, with very few exceptions, needs resurfacing and most need to be completely rebuilt.

Bay St. Louis needs to extend the sewer system into the annexed areas, (it was promised over 10 years ago by previous administrations). Property owners can't build on lots because of a lack of sewer lines and a board of health reluctant to issue septic tank permits.

Bay St. Louis doesn't even have a master sewer and drainage plan, and flood photography taken during recent rains prove the drainage problems.

The thing is this.

The Bay administration knows the need of these improvements, and if they had $495,000 surplus funds they, we think, would be spending some of them to correct some of these problems.

We could go on, on, and on....

We have been told that figures can be used to show anything the way you want them to - we wonder if that isn't the case here.

by Westwood Developers, E. F. Beyer Subdivision, and Bay St. Louis Public Schools, at a cost of $86,000, according to W. W. Webre of Westwood Developers. It was built over 10 years ago before the area was annexed, and became city property after annexing.

Reason for the blowout, according to Webre, was the failure of a rubber gasket. This gasket had been leaking and he had informed City Hall about the problem. They told me of their intent to repair it Thursday, he said Friday.

The break caused 80 city users to be without water and the rest of the city to have a lower than normal water pressure. Areas affected with no water were: Bay Senior High School, Harry St., 600 block, Highland Drive, 600 block, Esplanade Drive, Beyer Drive, 600 block, deMontluzin, Pine St., Blue Meadow Rd., Drinkwater, Rd. and 600 block Carroll Ave.

Kuntz stated that this was a normal occurrence, because of the recent heavy rains.

"Bay St. Louis is not the only city to have suffered broken water mains," the engineer reported.

Webre said the city used a different coupling this time than they did the first time they hooked up the water to the subdivision, this time they used a mechanical joint.

Federations to update the state's farmers on the situation and press for more research that Ross feels will ultimately result in a permanent label for Ferriamicide and renewed aerial application hopefully by next Spring.

Farmers are concerned about the cost of fire ant infestation in dollars as well as in health hazards. And today Ross believes that EPA is looking hard at both sides of the situation to better weigh known liabilities of infestation against possible but scarcely proven environmental hazards. To show its faith in the undertaking, EPA has provided $160,000 and scientific personnel to aid the research project at Mississippi State University.

The Commissioner feels that the most important undertaking right now is to complete the research project in order to win EPA's concurrence that fire ants indeed are worse than their cure.

In the meantime, while aerial application is banned, Ross believes Mississippi farmers will suffer an upsurge in fire ant population that will be reflected in diminished agricultural land values in the state and an upswing in crop and livestock losses.

The Sea Coast Echo welcomes comments from its readers on subjects of general public interest. All letters must be signed, home address given and conform to published standards, be brief, in good taste and reason.

O'Hara said the funds were garnered at a Halloween Court event staged during the last school year, and by a candy sale this year.

Sea Coast Echo

Dear Sir,

In our world of convenience where quick service and cheap prices dominate, there's one convenience service that's often bypassed - the library.

Libraries offer you "info, plus entertainment, to go" - and it's available to all Mississippians. And libraries don't sacrifice quality and good service just to provide convenience.

Where else could you go to get away from the every day hassles and lose yourself in another world? Whether you're planning a trip, looking for a new recipe, or just keeping up with current events - the library has what you're looking for.

As local chairman for National Library Week in Hancock County, I believe that Mississippians need to be made aware of the vast services that libraries provide. The library really has a tremendous value - even in today's fast-moving society.

National Library Week, 1978, set for April 2-8, is a good time for every Mississippian to visit his local library and realize just what he's missing by not making regular trips to the library. It's as easy as running to the store for a loaf of bread!

The library - the place for "info to go."

Sincerely,
Max Berns, Chairman
Hancock County National Library Week Committee

Heritage Continued

It needs to be told

Hancock County consists of several different and distinct groups. The community has its religious history, its businesses, its civic and "cultural" groups, its politicians, humanitarians, philosophers, historians, farmers, cattle breeders, industrialists, property owners, interesting homes and public buildings, schools and clubs. This is our heritage.

The Hancock County story needs to be told. An enduring story of our culture to be properly told depends on the help and support of the people who have elected to make Hancock County their County. owned by Harrison County through the issuance of $12 million in revenue sharing bonds.

Initially, the DuPont subsidiary will operate the spur line to link the DeLisle plant with Port of Gulfport from which the plant's finished product-titanium dioxide whitening pigment-will be shipped and raw materials received.

In addition, the county's long range development plans envision a linear industrial park along the DuDe RR route.

Harrison County has reserved the right to lease the spur to other industries which might locate in the area.

While Thursday's hearing was ostensibly to consider DuPont's permit applications to build trestles across Wolf River, Bayou DeLisle and Turkey Creek, the environmentalists raised the issue of the effect on the wetlands area of the additional industrial development envisioned along the railway.

"The issue we are dealing with here tonight goes far beyond whether the crossing of Wolf River is an adequate crossing but whether or not the Coast can stand the development of 20,000 acres in heavy industry," said Save The Bay's new attorney, Earl Denham of Ocean Springs.

Denham and another Save The Bay advocate, Robert W. Smith of Biloxi, maintained the original Environmental Impact Statement done on the project by the Interstate Commerce Commission and accepted by the Corps is illegal.

The attorneys insisted the EIS does not confront the question of additional industries along the track and their effect on the area.

Board Chairman Cyril Laan of Save The Bay said the EIS "falls short and does not really tell the true story" of the railroad's effect on the environment.

"This book does not give the people the right impression," Laan said, "it gives them the wrong impression."

"As chairman of the board of save The Bay, I would like to demand that a new Environmental Impact Statement be done," Laan told the Corps.

The Sierra Club's Gulf Coast chapter, members of which are also in Save The Bay, also opposed the proposed industrial development in what the Club's president, Cyrus Rhodes, described as "significant natural areas."

"Most of the public-at-large along the Gulf Coast is thinking in terms of an innocent little railroad spur for the sole purpose of serving DuPont," Laan said earlier in the week in a letter to John C. White of Atlanta, regional director of the Environmental Protection Agency.

"They are unaware that a huge 20,000-acre, heavy-industry belt 13.5 miles long and 2.3 miles wide running from Gulfport to DeLisle is actively in the making, and devastation of the environment there is hanging over our heads," Laan continued.

The environmentalist pointed out in his letter that "forests, swamps, and wildlife habitat over the 20,000 acres will be destroyed in the ensuing industrial development."

White also attended Thursday's hearing in Gulfport at the request of Save The Bay officials but made no comment for the record.

The EPA is slated to review the construction permits once they are cleared by the Corps.

The Corps will continue to collect written comments for 10 days, and a spokesman said that it will be at least 30 days before a decision is announced.

Under the alternate route proposal offered by DuPont Thursday night, the necessity to fill more than 13 acres of wetlands has been eliminated. Less than one acre along the route will require fill, he said.

"This can be accomplished by using trestles instead of an embankment to cross wetlands at Turkey Creek; realigning the route slightly at Bayou DeLisle to follow an existing dyke coupled with a trestle; and, moving the Wolf River crossing 200 yards to the north, thereby avoiding an ecologically valuable oxbow lake," a DuPont spokesman told the Corps.

Harrison County Board of Supervisors President Ernest Melvin, as well as representatives of Harrison County Development Commission, Southern Mississippi Planning and Development District, Chambers of Commerce of Pass Christian, Gulfport and Hancock County joined in supporting DuPont at the hearing.

The company further argued that the rail spur is the best way to move shipments of titanium dioxide ore from the Port of Gulfport to the plant.

DuPont attorney William R. Rubbert said "Barging was determined to be ecologically undesirable due to a need for dredging in Bay St. Louis, disposal of spoil, and disturbance of salt marsh areas on the plant site."

The plant is currently under construction on some 200 acres between the Kiln-DeLisle Road and north shore of Bay St. Louis. The company plans a mid-1979 opening date.

"Truck transportation alone would be unable to cope with the volume of traffic, while unnecessarily increasing public exposure, fuel consumption and impact on area roads," Rubbert continued.

"It would require 60 to 70 trucks per day, 365 days per year to provide the transportation capacity which will be available over the railroad," the attorney stated.

Project engineer Cecil Palmer of Michael Baker and Associates Inc. of Jackson said that careful consideration was given to all aspects of environmental concern during formulation of the alternative proposals presented Thursday.

Help Mississippi, Inc., a new citizens group favoring the railroad and the plant, was represented at a public hearing for the first time Thursday night.

Chairman Robert Hanberry entered into the official record what he said were more than 700 names on petitions favoring the spur.

Hanberry said the names were of people who live in the western end of the Mississippi Gulf Coast which traditionally has been economically ranked below the eastern end of the area, people who will depend on the plant for jobs.

Pilgrimage ...

which is a separate wing, and characteristic of the architecture of the times, will be shown and old china and glassware will be displayed here by Bay-Waveland Garden Club members.

Next, the tour will visit the home of Mr. and Mrs. Neil Jeffrey, Jr., 705 North Beach Blvd. in Waveland.

This home incorporates many of the features of its predecessor at the same location destroyed by Hurricane Camille, including the old columns and antique doors.

Furnished mostly with English antiques and Southern furnishings, the home has a lovely rocking chair, porch, and antique ceiling fans. The Jacobean dining set features a deeply carved sideboard and fourteen chairs.

Also of interest are sets of antique china, R.S. Prussia and Limoges. In the dining room the fireplace is faced with antique Biblical tiles, in a room also graced with a Waterford crystal chandelier.

Moving through Waveland, the Pilgrimage stops again at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Paul E. La Violette, 665 North Beach. Constructed of plank redwood, these contemporary homes combines beach and garden living. It has a central atrium and private gardens to the entrance and master bedroom. White walls, cathedral ceilings accented by rubbed dark wood trim and old ceiling fans give the house a relaxed look.

Finally, the tour will visit the garden of Mr. and Mrs. N.L. Snider, 315 Hillcrest, Waveland.

This informal garden shows evidence of the loving care and attention its owners give to the native trees, shrubs and over one hundred camellias and azaleas growing among the dogwood trees. A small greenhouse is close to the vegetable garden.

On its March 31 visit to Diamondhead, the Pilgrimage will visit the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert E. Pressman, 7812 Puna Place, Diamondhead, Devil's Elbow, the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Turcotte, and Rotten Bayou Cemetery.

The Pressman residence is a rustic contemporary home featuring expansive elevations of fixed glass and post and beam construction. A massive brick fireplace forms the core of the structure, and its double firebox, twin hearts, woodbin, charcoal broiler, and unique energy-saving flue system enhance the country kitchen.

Devil's Elbow, on Bayou Baneshewah, is the setting where a small number of idealists can provide an unequalled sanctuary for their families, similar to the secluded lifestyle sought and found by the Acadians. Four different homestyles will reproduce the charm of the Creole and Acadian cottages, with many of the same materials, wood mold brick, cedar and pine wood.

Following lunch at the Diamondhead Country Club, Dutch treat (reservations please-255-1421), the pilgrims will visit the residence of Mr. and Mrs. James Turcotte on Helewa Place.

This contemporary villa-type newly built two-story home, has one most unusual feature for this part of the country - a basement. Overlooking Rotten Bayou, it also has many other features. Concrete tile used on the roof was sent from San Antonio, Texas.

Replete with historical background, Rotten Bayou Cemetery was essentially a family cemetery for the Fenton and Mills communities.

The original 40 acre site was donated for community use before the Civil War by Felicite Moran Cuevas, after her husband, Frank, was buried there. He was the son of Juan de Cuevas, a resident of Cat Island, who gained fame as the "Paul Revere of the Mississippi Gulf Coast" during the War of 1812. A celebration of Mass at the grave site of a beloved area priest takes place each All Saints Day.

TRAFFIC DEATHS

Traffic deaths in Mississippi during 1977 were six percent higher than in the previous year, but far below the number killed in the late 1960's and the early 1970's. In 1977, there were 690 traffic deaths as compared to 677 for the previous year.

Bay Yacht Club basin dredging OK'd

The U. S. Army Corps of Engineers has issued a navigable waterways construction permit to the Bay-Waveland Yacht Club for maintenance dredging of its harbor.

The club's permit application calls for the dredging of approximately 8,300 cubic yards of silt and sand to be deposited behind a proposed 500-foot bulkhead in Bay St. Louis.

The Corps also approved the application of Mrs. Joseph E. Cure Jr. of Clermont Harbor for a permit to establish an oyster reef in the Mississippi Sound off Hancock County.

In its report on February actions on navigable waterways construction permit applications, the Corps said applications from Thomas J. Holzhauser and P. Troclair for placement and harvesting of oysters in the Mississippi Sound off Hancock County have been cancelled or withdrawn.

Also cancelled or withdrawn is an application from Don Lockwood for a boat house and bulkhead at Jourdan River Shores, the Corps reported.

A cease and desist order has been issued by the Corps against Lee Adams for dredging in the Pass Christian Isles, the February report noted.

International Paper Company received Corps approval to rebuild a dock and boat shed and for dredging off Mulatto Bayou near Pearllington.

Approval was also granted to Mississippi Marine Resources Council for proposed pile supported platforms for tide-gauging instruments in selected locations of the Mississippi Sound.

Bay St. Louis

FLY FOR YOUR LIFE

The publication in March of Fly For Your Life marks the beginning of a new series of war books to be published by Bantam Books. General Editor of the series is David Ballantine; his brother Ian Ballantine is consultant. Their leadership in the paperback publishing of war books, dating from the war years themselves, brought about many of the most outstanding publications in the history of war book publishing. The Bantam War Books will include both original works and books of proven success presented in new mass market editions. Fly For Your Life is Larry Forrester's original biography of R. R. Stanford Tuck, one of Britain's greatest air aces, who was credited with 29 enemy aircraft destroyed. It has been chosen by the Military Book Club as a July 1978 Dual Selection. In the blazing, screaming summer of 1940, Hitler boasted that his powerful Luftwaffe would easily bomb England into submission. The small but gallant Royal Air Force was all that stood in his way. Winston Churchill's famous tribute - "Never in the field of human conflict have so many owed so much to so few" - was said of men like Wing Commander Tuck and his comrades in the Royal Air Force, the "so few" who won the Battle of Britain. Only ten percent survived.

One of the survivors was Tuck, described in Fly For Your Life as "a complex man, the sort you could love readily, fear instinctively and never quite get to know." With his deadly Spitfire he became a reckless, steely-eyed fighter pilot. His unofficial score of enemy planes destroyed was 35. He was shot down four times, wounded twice, crash landed in the Channel and survived two air collisions. Tuck was sent to the U.S. to help train American combat pilots. When he returned home to carry out missions over Hitler's Fortress Europe, he was shot down and captured. Three years later he escaped. After a fantastic journey across Europe and Russia, where he fought beside Russian infantry, he returned home at war's end to marry the woman who had waited for him.

An original painting by Frank Wootton opens the Bantam edition of Fly For Your Life in the form of a four-color gatefold insert - an innovation in paperback publishing. It captures an instant of air combat when Tuck met the German ace Adolf Galland over the French coast in 1941. A dramatic detail from the painting is reproduced on the cover and line drawings of aircraft in action appear throughout the text. The Wootton painting is being exhibited at the National Air and Space Museum in Washington, D.C.

Specially commissioned paintings, drawings, and maps will also be featured in future Bantam War Books.

Author Larry Forrester, born in Scotland, took his wartime flight training in the U.S. and flew operationally with the RAF in Europe and Southeast Asia. He worked as a journalist after the war and in his spare time he wrote Fly For Your Life, which became a European bestseller and which has been constantly reprinted there since it was first published in 1956. Mr. Forrester's other writings include the screenplay for the Pearl Harbor epic "Tora! Tora! Tora!" and "Rehearsal for Armageddon," a two-hour special for NBC.

Mop in main Bay sewer line

A large mop head was cited by Bay officials as the reason for sewer backup at Keller and Watts Sts. illustrated Thursday in this paper.

Bay Mayor Larry Bennett said a sewer cleaning firm had been called to the scene Thursday morning and it was they who discovered the mop head in the main sewer line. Residents of the immediate area say the problem had plagued them "since before Christmas."

'Aunt Polly'

By S. Grady Thigpen,
Hancock historian

Mrs. Polly Whitney when 92, was the oldest continuous resident of Gainesville when she moved out to make way for the Saturn project there. She had lived in the old river town, which once shared honors with Biloxi and Pearlinton as the best towns in South Mississippi, for 89 years. Born near Picayune in 1871, she moved with her family to Gainesville when she was three years old.

Aunt Polly, as she was familiarly known, had a vivid memory of her young days in Gainesville. She remembers well the old stories told to her by her grandfather, W. A. (Bill) Whitfield when the stores in Gainesville included those of Poitevant, Dan Carver who later moved to Nicholson, John Moore, Bill Whitfield, Russell Smith, George Holliman and Bourgeois who moved his business to Nicholson after the railroad came through.

Also she remembered there were two barrooms, two drug stores, a telegraph office, two hotels, a livery stable, a blacksmith shop, several saw mills, a brick yard and several boats owned and operated by citizens of Gainesville. She did not remember it, but there was once a drydock for repair and maintenance of boats in Gainesville.

Aunt Polly also remembered the Moses Cook Masonic Lodge at Gainesville, the upper floor used for the lodge and the lower floor used for school, church and other public meetings. The fact that there was a full time telegraph office at Gainesville shows the importance of this river town as a business and commercial center.

Having made her home in the house of her grandfather, Bill Whitfield, Aunt Polly remembered much about an old time business man of this area. He owned a schooner named the "Mary Pearl," and a steamboat, the "Martha," named after his two daughters. He had teams and contract hauling. He would take on cargo in New Orleans, or elsewhere for any place in this area, like Columbia for instance, unload from the boats in Gainesville onto wagons and deliver it at its destination. He took cattle in place of money for merchandise in his store. He became owner of many cattle, selling at one time 1500 which he delivered to New Orleans in his own boat.

When the railroad was being built, his teams delivered supplies by team as far up as Lumberton. There were a number of commercial boat owners at Gainesville. Along with the Whitfield boats, they hauled cattle, wood, lumber, piling, charcoal, brick, tar and other things to faraway parts - New Orleans, Mobile, Tampa, Pensacola, Galveston and so forth. These same ships brought to Gainesville merchandise of all kinds. Since there were no banks in this area back in those days, merchants paid for their goods in cash or by barter. During the Civil War the merchants of Gainesville had a big problem in getting back and forth to New Orleans, and other ports, to get their merchandise and to transfer funds to pay their bills. Federal soldiers confiscated all the gold they could find and did not hesitate to confiscate merchandise they considered they needed.

Many of these local boat owners slipped their boats into and out of New Orleans through little known and little used passages connecting with Pearl River along the coast. To take care of his business, Bill Whitfield would send his wife into the city as a passenger on any boat convenient to him. His wife, Aunt Sallie, would sew, gold and paper money into her clothes. The union soldiers would search her baggage but never find her money. Aunt Sallie would arrive in New Orleans, go to her money hider, all the money, then pay their bills with it.

On one occasion while coming back from New Orleans, Aunt Sallie's boat ran into a storm, got off course and was captured by a Federal gunboat. The passengers on the boat were carried to Fort Pike, while the boat was anchored in the nearby Rigolets. After sometime at Fort Pike, Aunt Sallie saw a Masonic pin on the officer in charge. She convinced him that her husband was a Mason. He then assured her he would see that she got back home safely.

In the dark of the night, this officer smuggled Aunt Sallie out of the enclosure where prisoners were kept and carried her down to the water's edge to a row boat, telling her that he had six good men who would take her to Pearlinton. When the boat pulled up, she saw that the crew was made up of six big negroes. She was afraid to go with them, the officer told her that they were completely reliable, and that she would have to go with them or not at all.

She got into the boat and they started, in the black night, on their dangerous trip. By strenuous effort they made their way before daylight out of the area where patrolling boats might be apt to see them. The followed little known and mysterious channels throughout the day, always being careful to keep out of sight of any boats that might be operating in that area. Early the next night they landed Aunt Sally in Pearlinton. She profusely thanked the crew of the little boat and made her way to a friend's home in Pearlinton. This friend under cover of darkness, carried her on to her home in Gainesville.

Bill Whitfield was born in Florida. He moved with his father to this area in 1845. At 18 years old, he married Sallie Mitchell, daughter of Aunt Vinnie Mitchell who lived just above where Cedar Grove church now stands. His father gave him a pig as a wedding present. Her folks gave her a feather mattress. That was the total of their possessions. They went to live under an old shed out in the woods. There were no walls around it but a board roof overhead. They piled up pine straw to put the feather mattress on for a bed. They cooked over an open fire in the woods. Before cold weather came they nailed up rough pine boards for walls.

He got a job that paid him 75 cents a day for cutting logs. After the day's work was over, he would work other hours well into the night cutting wood which brought him about 50 cents a day. He made it a rule that everytime he had saved up as much as $7 or $8 to buy a heifer calf or yearling. In the course of time he had a good herd of cattle. He sold enough of the cattle to buy a home, near what is now known as the Old Telly place two miles southeast of Picayune, where he lived for sometime.

Later on he moved to Gainesville, getting into the transportation and merchandise business as well as the cattle business in all of which he was successful.

S. Grady Thigpen has published five books of old time Hancock County, more than one of which is in its second printing - ED.)

POISON-PROOF YOUR HOME

Poison and kids don't mix, but spring cleaning and poison-proofing do. Why not select March 19-25, National Poison Prevention Week, to start your spring house cleaning? Clean out cabinets, closets, garages and storage rooms of items which could be toxic to children. Items such as medicines, cleaners, solvents and pesticides need special care. These products should be destroyed if no longer useful. If kept, they should be securely and placed where a child can't reach them - ideally under lock and key.

Since safety packaging came into being, the number of accidental poisonings has decreased significantly. It may seem a little inconvenient, but the young lives saved have been well worth the inconvenience. To protect your child, properly resecure all packages after use. When having a prescription refilled always ask for a new container.

It's a good idea to have at least an ounce of syrup of ipecac in your home, especially if you have small children. The syrup, which should be given only after calling a doctor, is used to induce vomiting in certain poisoning cases when a physician recommends it.

Other good ideas for avoiding accidental poisoning are:

--Store internal medicines separately from other household products.

--Avoid taking medicines in front of children.

--Never refer to medicines as "candy."

--When household substances are in use, never let them out of an adult's sight.

--Keep poisonous substances in their original containers with labels attached. Never transfer them to cups or soft drink bottles.

--Keep all products properly labeled and read labels before using.

--Always keep a light on when giving or taking medicines.

When medicines and chemicals are in your home, it's your responsibility to make sure your children and pets do not accidentally swallow them.

Use this week to help fulfill this responsibility.

HOME FREEZING OF POTATOES

Because of the wide variety, high quality and economy of processed potato products and the year-round availability of fresh potatoes, many people don't find it practical to can or freeze fresh potatoes at home. But many have questions about freezing. Following are some recommendations.

The best potatoes for freezing are those that have been cooked: mashed potato patties, bake stuffed potatoes or french fries.

Raw potatoes or potatoes in combination dishes such as soups and stews do not freeze well. Upon thawing and reheating, they tend to disintegrate, particularly if the potatoes are whole or cut in large cubes. If preparing a combination dish for freezing, omit the potatoes; add them during the thawing-reheating step before serving.

FREEZER DEFROSTING TIPS

Most freezers need to be defrosted once or twice a year or when frost is $\frac{1}{2}$ inch thick. If the freezer is partially full, move all the food to one side and scrape accumulated frost with a wooden spoon. Or, wrap the frozen foods in newspapers and store in a picnic cooler or a newspaper-lined cardboard box. Unplug the freezer unit from the wall socket to avoid the danger of electrical shock. For heavy frost buildup, place pans of hot water in the freezer to hasten defrosting. An electric fan or a hair dryer blowing directly on the frost will also speed up the job. Wash with water to which baking soda has been added. Rinse and dry. Reload food immediately.

MISSISSIPPI WEEKLY WEATHER & CROP REPORT

Mississippi
Crop & Livestock
Reporting Service

WEEK ENDING: March 11, 1978

RELEASED: March 13, 1978

WEATHER SUMMARY

Rain was reported five to six days during the weekly reporting period. The heaviest amount of rainfall was reported in Biloxi with 1.67 inches followed by Columbia and Hattiesburg with .97 and .96 respectively. Snow and sleet were reported on the 4th, 9th, and 10th. Temperatures averaged 10 to 15 degrees below normal with a maximum of 72 degrees in Biloxi on Wednesday and a minimum of 10 degrees in Oxford on Sunday. Precipitation was evident over central and northeastern Mississippi during the weekend with amounts generally less than one-half inch.

CROP SUMMARY:

Feeding and caring for livestock was the major farm activity. Land preparation and financial planning were some of the other farm activities.

Soil moisture supplies and surplus. An average of 1.0 days was suitable for field work compared to 1.8 days last week and 1.7 days last year.

About 21 percent of the acreage intended for spring planted crops had been plowed compared to three percent last year. Winter wheat and oats were in poor to fair condition. Livestock were in fair condition. Pastures were in poor to fair condition.

COMMENTS

LAMAR CO. "Some corn is being planted. As soon as fields dry up some, planting will pick up. Watermelon growers are getting things ready."

CHOCTAW CO. "Still too wet to do any land preparation, everyone waiting for weather to open up. Indications are for cotton cut-back and up soybean production."

TISHOMINGO CO. "Majority of farmers are undecided about crops to be planted this year."

CALHOUN CO. "Weather has been cool and damp during week. Practically no fieldwork has been done. Feed supplies, especially hay, getting real low."

TUNICA CO. "Farmers are making final plans for the 1978 crops. Many farmers are applying for Small Business emergency loans."

Eye close cut for Spring lawn moving

"The first mowing of your lawn in the spring should be the closest one during the season," says Dr. Hiram Palmertree, Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service agronomist.

"Lower the mowing height at least one-half inch lower than the last mowing of the fall, regardless of the kind of summer grass. This reduces the weed competition by putting the weeds under stress."

"Also, close mowing in the spring removes brown stubble and leaves left from the previous year's growth."

"The warm season lawngresses will not green up from the tips because new growth comes from beneath the stem joints. Close mowing removes the stubble which delays emergence and looks unsightly in the early summer. After one close mowing, raise the mower to its original desired height for the remainder of the season," he added.

Your lawn needs feeding, too, says the agronomist. Summer lawn grasses need to be fertilized when growth begins in the spring. Use a mixed fertilizer (one containing the three major elements: nitrogen, phosphorus, potassium). It should be sufficient until June when an application of nitrogen will probably be needed. However, the only way to accurately conduct a fertilizer program is by soil testing. The soil test will determine the rate and amount of fertilizer to use.

Production cost vs. profit the farmer's 1978 dilemma

By CLIFF BICE
Editor-News Media
Mississippi Cooperative

Most Americans know that we are facing an energy crisis and that we must discover alternate sources of energy before we exhaust our supply of fossil fuels. But many of us do not realize that we are facing a crisis that is potentially even more critical than our energy problem - a crisis in the abundance of food and fiber for Americans.

The average American family spends slightly less than 17 percent of its disposable income for food - the lowest percentage of any nation. And not only do most of us have enough money to buy plenty of food for good nutrition, we have the greatest selection of high quality foods in the world. Our supermarkets and food stores are bulging with every kind of food product imaginable.

Department and clothing stores are filled with the latest styles of clothes for all family members made from American cotton. Lumber dealers and home building stores have the wood and wood products needed in abundance to build or remodel homes.

But this period of abundance of food and fiber could be coming to an end unless something is done for the American farmer.

For the past three years, most farmers have lost money in their farm operations. Farm production costs for items such as machinery, fertilizer, seeds, chemicals have continued to increase year-by-year, while the prices farmers receive for their raw products have increased only slightly, and some have remained about the same and many have actually decreased in price at the farm. Farmers have tried to combat this cost-price squeeze by producing more, but they have about reached their limits on the volume they can produce.

The problem is that farmers have no control over what they must pay for production items, nor do they have any control over what they are paid for their raw products.

If this situation were true in the automobile industry, the motor companies would be forced to pay the asking price for steel, aluminum, plastic, and other materials used in making cars, but they would receive only what the customer would offer for the new car, even if the price was lower than production costs. With this situation, the auto makers wouldn't stay in business very long either.

The critical fact is that agriculture is the very foundation of our economy. Only about four percent of the U.S. population produces food and fiber for all the rest of us, plus surplus products for other countries. If agriculture fails and our food and fiber supply vanishes, we will all be forced to leave our manufacturing and business jobs and return to the land. We've got to eat every day to survive, even if we have to grow our own food! If agriculture fails, the entire economy will fall along with it. This makes agriculture everyone's business!

Let's back the farmer in his struggle for a fair profit in the market place. Today's farmer has the technology, the know-how, the equipment and the determination to produce food and fiber in quantity and quality. Let's make sure he also has a chance of getting a fair price for his hard work and tremendous investment.

It's a problem far more pressing than our energy shortage!

Hay crop production '78 needs high fertilization

Practically all the hay and silage in Mississippi has or will be fed before spring, and stocks of stored roughage will be near zero.

"Farmers must produce all the hay and silage needed for next winter from now until fall," says Dr. Kelton Anderson, leader, Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service Agronomy Department. "Not only must they produce more than usual, but it must be done on less acreage because of the pasture and hay acreage being planted to soybeans," he added.

Hay crops are mostly grasses and will respond to a high rate of fertilizer, especially nitrogen. These crops also remove high levels of potassium and moderate amounts of phosphorus.

For example, a general recommendation for coastal bermudagrass which will be cut four times during the growing season is up to 300 pounds of nitrogen, 90 pounds of phosphate and 180 pounds of potash per acre. With adequate moisture and a high producing crop like coastal bermuda, 8 to 10 tons of fertilizer per acre is not unusual. Ryegrass is making its peak growth now. It makes excellent hay, even though it is sometimes hard to cut. If ryegrass hasn't been nitrated since late February, apply 50 pounds of nitrogen per acre at once. A producer should be able to cut $\frac{1}{4}$ tons of excellent ryegrass hay per acre in May.

High rates of fertilizer will pay with hybrid bermudas. Apply 80 to 90 pounds of nitrogen, 90 pounds of phosphate and 180 pounds of potash per acre. Then topdress with 60 pounds of nitrogen after each cutting, as long as moisture and growing conditions are good. Summer permanent grasses such as common bermuda, dallisgrass, and bahiagrass will use up to 180 pounds of nitrogen, 50 pounds of phosphate and 100 pounds of potash per acre. They should produce four to five tons of hay per acre with these fertilizer rates. Make first application from April 15 to May 1.

Summer temporary crops such as sorghum sudan hybrids, millets or sudan grass will need about 60-80-120 pounds respectively of nitrogen, phosphate and potash at planting and a topdress application of 60 pounds of nitrogen per acre after each hay cutting.

Johnsongrass will respond about as sorghum sudan does to fertilizer.

"There are several other hay crops that will produce good yields if properly fertilized and managed," reports Dr. Anderson. "Soybeans, lespedeza and other legumes are all used to some extent for hay. Legumes don't need nitrogen like the grasses, but will respond to adequate rates of phosphate and potash."

"You will note that the ratio of nitrogen, phosphate and potash is about a 4-1-2 or a 3-1-2. This indicates the need to use more 1-2 phosphate, potash ratio in the mixed fertilizer grades for hay," he adds.

Remember to soil test to get precise needs. If you don't have soil test recommendations, use the suggested rates and put up more hay per acre this year.

MILK PRODUCTION

RELEASED: March 10, 1978
FEBRUARY MILK
PRODUCTION

Production of milk in Mississippi during February is estimated at 64 million pounds, the Mississippi Crop and Livestock Reporting Service announced today. This is three percent below a year earlier.

There were 109,000 milk cows on farms during the month, six percent below a year earlier. Milk production per cow averaged 590 pounds, 20 pounds above February 1977.

UNITED STATES
Milk production totaled 9,341 million pounds in February, slightly above February 1977 but six percent below the previous month. Average production per cow was 650 pounds, nine pounds more than a year earlier but 58 pounds below January 1978. Milk cows were estimated at 10,915 head during February, one percent below a year earlier and 18,000 head below January.

The February milk-feed price ratio was 1.70, up 1.00 in January.

THE OLE PASTOR SAYS...

IS THE SECOND COMING OF CHRIST IMMINENT?

Many students of prophecy think so! It is the conviction of many Bible scholars that most, if indeed not all, Bible prophecies pointing to the second coming of Our Lord in the clouds, the rapture of the saints and the great tribulation on earth have been fulfilled.

On this subject, Jesus used two analogies in answer to inquiries about the time and signs of His second coming. In the Gospels of Matthew and Luke He compared the conditions at the end of this age with conditions in the "days of Noah" (Gen. 6:1-13), and the "days of Lot" (Gen. chapters 13, 18 and 19), when the "wickedness of man was great in the earth, and that every imagination of the thoughts of his heart was only evil continually." ... corrupted, immoral and degenerated thoughts and desires. The cities of Sodom and Gomorrah were destroyed because of the festering immoral degeneracy of homosexuality with its low, lewd, lustful and licentious indulgences.

The recent demonstrations and demands of homosexuals to be granted the right to teach our children, and be accepted as moral and social equals in a Judeo-Christian society is the last straw and points to the end of the age and the wrath of God upon such moral filth. Even worse is the shocking audacity of some who would defend the "rights" of such motely characters to corrupt the morals of our children.

The Biblical account of the fiery destruction of Sodom and Gomorrah leaves no question as to what God thinks of the conduct and practices of homosexuals, lesbians and their kind.

Should there remain any question with the reader; read what God has to say in His Word about such base and ignoble persons who would, if left to impose their evil desires, would corrupt all mankind.

God loves the soul of the homosexual as well as He does anyone else; but He despises their sins. When they speak of "Gay liberation," they should, in contrite repentance, be praying for the liberation of their souls from their sins. Like fornicators, idolaters, thieves, covetous, drunkards, revilers, extortioners and other sinful practices against God and man, these "effeminate" (homosexuals and bisexuals) and "abusers of themselves with mankind," spoken of in Genesis 18:20-21; 19:1-13; Romans 1:14-27; I Corinthians 6:9-11; II Tim. 3:3 and other passages, should repent of their sins and humbly trust in the Lord Jesus Christ for salvation. They can be saved!

God speaks of their sins as being "very grievous." Like all people, they have some "rights"; but no one has a "right" to corrupt and destroy the character, morals, happiness and hopes of others. - L.S. Walker

1,000 SEASON TICKETS

A concerted drive to break its own record for season tickets sold, set at 927 in the 1977, masterminded by Mississippi State Baseball Coach Ron Polk, ended successfully six months after the campaign began. Last year's record season tickets sales were a prelude to the largest crowd east of the Mississippi River at a single college baseball game 1st year, 6,362 fans at the MSU-Mississippi clash on April 16, 1977, at Dudy Noble Field, and to a record $46,147 gate for the year at MSU.

Dr. John Longest, director of the MSU Student Health Center, bought the historic 1000th ticket for State's 1978 27-game home slate.

MORE WOMEN MISS WORK

SSC, Pass earn top slots in tri-meet

The St. Stanislaus Rockachaws turned in 57 points and eight first place wins to by-pass Pass Christian with 40 points and St. Martin with 31 to claim the overall win in a tri-angular meet Thursday at Rockachaw field.

Charles Vincent repeated winning performances in the long jump, bettering his own winning 19 feet 11 1/2 inch mark to 20 feet 4 inches, and the high jump at six feet.

SSC's Roy Anderman vaulted nine feet in the pole-vault to pass Robert Payton of St. Martin in that field event.

In the track events, St. Stanislaus took first place in the 440 dash as Craig Marcello turned in a 57.8 run followed by Pass Christian's James Cannon. In the 880 run, Mark Koch took the laurels for St. Stanislaus at 2:16.3. Tommy Lotz crossed the line in 5:05.6, ahead of John Wittman of Pass Christian, in the mile run.

The relay events afforded SSC two more blue ribbons. The team of Singleton, Pfister, Mead, and Vincent turned in 1:39.3 for the win. In the mile relay, Marcello, Logan, Boh, and Mead came in ahead of the Pass Christian team at 3:56.3.

Pass Christian gathered four first place wins to add to their six second place seats for a solid second place overall.

In the field event, C. J. Bowser chunked the shot-put 41 feet 2 inches for the ribbon, while K. Pruitt took first in the discus with 111 feet 4 inches. Gene Lang turned in a 10.9 performance in the 110 yard dash and 24.6 in the 220 for two first place slots.

John Pat Swanier got second place in the 180 low hurdles, and the Pass Christian relay team slid into second in the 440 relay.

Stanislaus hosts Pearl River, La. in a two-way meet Tuesday.

TEEN DRIVERS

The young driver (15-24) is a tragic problem throughout the nation. A study reveals that this age group represents 21 percent plus of the driving public, but is involved in 37 percent plus of the fatal accidents. Traffic accidents are the number one cause of deaths in this age group, according to the Mississippi Safety Council.

INFO TO GO
"Info to Go - At your library!"
That's the slogan for Mississippi's 1978 observance of National Library Week. And if you stop and think about it, you'll realize just how true it is!

Libraries are more than just book-filled buildings. They have the resources to provide the public with answers to questions of every description, ranging from the highly technical to the very vague.

Libraries have it all. Fiction that spans the latest best sellers to the classics, with lots of reading in between. Non-fiction that brings all types of information to anyone who is interested, from pre-Civil War life in Mississippi to how to make small talk.

Newspapers filled with current events. Countless magazines packed with informative articles dealing with numerous and varied subjects, current and past. Telephone directories of major cities. Recordings. Specialized reference books to answer those specialized questions. Artwork for loan. Film strips to illustrate a chosen topic. Reading material for those who cannot use conventional prints.

And what the local library doesn't have in its building, it can get through interlibrary loan. Whether the needed materials are somewhere in the state or somewhere in the world, the library has access to channels that make them available.

But the best thing about libraries is their convenience - a big plus in today's society. So remember - for "info to go" - try your local library!!

Little Theater season tickets are now on sale

By MIKE CUEVAS
Publicity Chairman
Season tickets for the Bay St. Louis Little Theatre 1978 season are now on sale. The tickets entitle the bearer to see four productions during the season for a mere $10.

The 1978 season includes "Everybody's Girl," April 27, 28 and 29; "The Lion in Winter," late June; "The Night of January 16," early September; and "A Shot in the Dark," early November.

Season ticket holders are notified by mail before each play. Notice includes, cast, late and time of the productions.

Season ticket holders are also eligible to be the first to purchase tickets for any special performances by the Little Theatre and tickets to the annual "Louis Awards Dinner" presented in early December.

FmHA foreclosure policy is explained for county

The Farmers Home Administration (FmHA) has outlined its policy on farm foreclosures in the light of current cost-price squeeze.

Robert W. Smith, county supervisor, Hancock County office, FmHA, said this week the agency will work with farmers in every way possible to assist in them staying on their farms.

"The FmHA will continue to work with farmers who have shown good faith in respect to their obligations," Smith said.

He said the criteria for such a credit continuance designation was that the farmer:

- Act in good faith;
- Exercise due diligence in an effort to retire his indebtedness but although he may not be able to pay on schedule because of circumstance beyond his control;
- Has reasonable prospects of accomplishing the loan's objectives and mechanics;
- Properly maintains and accounts for the security.

TO CURE AN ILL

In 1958 - the year the Mississippi Safety Council was organized - the traffic death rate stood at almost ten people killed for each 100 million miles travelled. In 1977, this death rate has been reduced to 4.1. This is most encouraging. Instead of being more than double the national average, we are now only 19 percent higher and we are better than that of Alabama and Louisiana. Now - if the Legislature could be convinced to lower the blood alcohol content from 15 to 10 percent and, if the municipal and justice court judges would exercise a little more discipline with traffic offenders; and if the 55 mph speed limit could be better enforced, and if more drivers would take advantage of the Defensive Driving Course, further reduction in traffic deaths would be possible, the Council states.
